

Apulia Workshop for Photographers

“What is a teacher? I’ll tell you: it isn’t someone who teaches something but someone who inspires the student to give of her best in order to discover what she already knows.” - Paulo Coelho

An invitation to attend a workshop with Barbara Luisi in Apulia, Italy is being extended to chosen institutions and their members and follows a line of mentorship that includes Eikoh Hosoe, whom Mrs. Luisi studied with and, from him, learned a great many cherished ideas about herself. The workshop will take place in Apulia, Italy from Saturday, July 12th through Tuesday, July 15th with 10 spots available. For more information, visit luisi-academy.org.

Mrs. Luisi’s current exhibitions are with Le Maison Europeenne de la Photograph in Paris, Galerie Emme Otto in Rome and with the upcoming Photo Med Festival in southern France. Her multi-disciplinary approach to not only art but to life blends quiet notes from her violin with the rich silence of her photographs. Light extracted from the moon as it slow dances with the sea becomes the same emotion as an expression on the face of a young girl in busy downtown Tokyo. With a deep sense of solitude holding fast to the swirling mass of contemporary life, Mrs. Luisi offers a soulful, profound juxtaposition of inspiration and craft within a complex mosaic of chosen subjects.
